Czechoslovak Veterans of World War Stopped at Washington

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Lashed and soaked by a driving snowstorm, a thousand Czechoslovak veterans of the World war, invalided home from fighting in Siberia, paraded up Pennsylvania avenue late yesterday and were reviewed by President Wilson in front of the White House.

It was the largest procession of foreign fighting troops the American capital had seen and the most picturesque. All veterans of five years' fighting, the oldest was a man of 70 with stooped shoulders and venerable beard, the youngest were only lads.

The veterans, who came across the Pacific on their way homeward, and who will sail from Newport News Sunday on their way to Bohemia, arrived early yesterday on special trains and were quartered at Camp Meigs.

Late in the afternoon they were taken in motor busses to the capitol where the procession up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House began just as torrents of rain poured down and drenched the soldiers. But when the marine band was not playing, the veterans were singing their native songs as they marched along with swinging strides, apparently unimpaired after five years of hardships on the battlefields, of the clouds of water that played over them. Motor ambulances from Walter Reed hospital carried 400 of the veterans too badly maimed to march.

Robert Phillips, James Stewart, George Stewart, William Stuart, Thomas Tomasi and Alfred McLeod motored to Lake Morey today. William Stuart, a clerk at the postoffice, begins his vacation Monday and leaves for Old Orchard, Me., to remain for two weeks.

Benjamin Prestini of the motor transportation corps, Cook Valenti Colombo of the 76th division, and Thomas Tongay, also of the 76th, have completed their services for Uncle Sam and arrived at their homes in this city on the early morning train. All have been in the army for slightly more than a year and were discharged from Devens yesterday afternoon.

Miss Gladys Rowell, formerly a student at Spaulding high school, has for the past two weeks been renewing acquaintances in Barre and Williamstown. While here she stopped with her aunt, Mrs. Isabelle Ewen of 29 East street. This morning Miss Rowell returned to her employment in Hartford, Conn.

William Johnston, Henry Fasola and Anselmo Stefanazzi, three young men who have been in Europe until quite recently, arrived in Barre late yesterday afternoon. All were glad to get back among their friends and equally so were their friends to meet them. William Johnston, the state golf champion, who previous to his service in the army was a draftsman at the LeClair & McNulty stonemason on Blackwell street, has been in France for the past year. He left Barre in May of 1918 and by July 10 of the same year was sailing for France. During his stay in the war territory he was with the advanced general headquarters company and shortly after the armistice was signed was detailed for service with the army of occupation in Preves, Germany. Henry Fasola, whose home is on Berlin street, also left early in 1918 with a tank corps which recently landed in New York. Anselmo Stefanazzi was for the past 14 months attached to the 103d ammunition train and, like the other two men, was discharged from Camp Devens after being transferred from Camp Mills.

MONTPELIER

A son was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rylander.

R. S. Currier, district highway commissioner, has returned from New York, where he has been loading some automobiles which came to Vermont as the result of a recent allotment that has been made. Now the state has been allotted by the federal government 76 machines for road work.

The financial resources which the Montpelier city council has to conduct the city's business received another punch Friday afternoon when the remainder of the abutment under the Jewett bridge fell down. Last spring a part of it fell, and Eugene Buck and his gang of men were working to replace that portion when on Friday afternoon the foundation of the rest of the abutment slid out, with the result that the wall went into the stream, leaving three large stones suspended between the end of the bridge and the bank. That the workmen escaped injury is surprising, for they did not have any warning of the fall.

The band concert given Friday evening by the Montpelier Military band was probably the best that the organization has given this season. Much praise was given the men and encores for "Chin Chin" and "Reminiscences from Verdi" were played. The band this year is playing with closer harmony than it has in recent years.

Miss Gertrude Fountain has accepted the position with Boutwell, Milne & Varnum that was offered Mrs. Frederick Dower, her sister, a few weeks ago and today she completes her services as stenographer with the Capital garage and Monday commences work in the new office. Miss Nellie Lynch, who has been working extra in the secretary of state's office, will be employed at the Capital garage.

Miss Alice Blodgett of Barre was a very much pleased woman Friday afternoon when the police returned to her the wrist watch which she had lost earlier in the day. It appears that she went to a box near the corner of Main and State streets shortly before noon to mail a letter. During the trip she dropped her watch but did not notice the loss until later. The matter was reported to the police. A short time after the loss occurred, a small girl found the watch and turned it over to the police with the result that early in the afternoon Miss Blodgett obtained her watch.

Special turkey dinner at Williamstown inn, Sunday, served from 12:30 to 2; 75c per plate—adv.

The first report of the board of control to the general assembly has been published and is being distributed to those interested in the same, although the legislature adjourned some months ago. The report for the most part contains the views of the state buildings. It gives a resume of the work done by the board and the results obtained and recommendations to the legislature among other statements.

J. O. W. Galaise, who has been in France for more than a year, returned home yesterday.

Harry A. Black, secretary of state, today suspended the license of Beecher Fonda of St. Albans for alleged reckless driving. The suspension is the result of a joy ride, it was stated. Nothing new developed about the investigation of the suspension of Horace Morton's companion's car license.

Commissioner J. C. Brown returned this morning from Boston, after a day's business stay in that city. He did not experience any trouble with trolley car service because, having obtained an automobile that he was to drive home, he did not need the car service. He saw four cars in operation, two in Boston and two in Newton. His train was an hour late in reaching Boston Friday morning due to the extra local. Nothing was running between Lowell and Boston to handle the extra traffic. Many large army trucks are used between the North and South stations.

About 30 boy scouts from Burlington came here by bicycle Friday afternoon. They enjoyed the band concert among other things in the city. This morning they left for Mt. Mansfield, where they expect to remain over Sunday.

Judge Frank J. Martin was in Waterbury yesterday, where a hearing occurred in probate court relative to the committing of M. H. Morgan to the state hospital at state expense.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Plimpton, who have been visiting relatives in Berlin, left this morning for their home in Clinton, Mass.

The automobile book which should have been out the first of the month was delivered to the secretary of state Friday and the officer sent copies to those who had requested the same. The book is much smaller than the one of a year ago, and is a more convenient book to have because it fits the coat pocket and contains more data concerning the automobiles. The largest number is 22995, held by Charles Lamphere of Windsor. It gives the makers' name, horse power of the car, and makers' number in addition to the information of other years. The Capital City Press worked night and day after getting the paper to hurry the publication of the book.

DISCARDED SWORD RETURNS.

British Regulations Require that Swords Be Carried.

London, July 19.—The sword which was discarded during the war because it was utterly useless has been formally returned to the British army. An order requires all "field marshals, generals and colonels, when dismounted," to wear it on all ceremonial parades and at official ceremonies.

TRYING TO DISPOSE OF RUSSIAN PRISONERS

Allies Do Not Know What to Do with Those Still Held in Germany Whom They Are Forced to Feed.

Paris, Friday, July 18 (By the Associated Press).—The supreme council of the peace conference to-day discussed the disposition of 240,000 Russian prisoners of war still in Germany at the request of the allies after the armistice and who are being fed at entente expense.

As many are infected with bolshevism, Poland and other countries through which they would return to Russia, have objected to giving them passage. Moreover, it is held they would be either forced into the bolshevik army or killed if sent home. The expense of maintaining them in Germany, however, is becoming burdensome. The council, unable today to reach a decision, referred the question to its military advisers for a report.

The council received a protest from the sheik of Aidin, Asia Minor, concerning atrocities which the Greeks are alleged to have committed upon Turks near Aidin. It was decided to send a military mission to investigate. The American delegation will cable to Washington for instructions.

The council has taken no action concerning the punishment of the former emperor of Germany and has not even considered the report from the commission on responsibilities which does not favor the peace conference allowing Field Marshal Von Hindenburg or anyone else to be substituted for the former monarch.

The council appears to be firm in the conviction which is held by military officials of the entente powers that William II. would be impossible to obtain the punishment of military, naval and civil officials in Germany who are charged with atrocities if the former emperor is exempted.

The council's appointment of General E. H. H. Allenby of the British army to the duty of adjusting differences between the Greek and Italian forces in Asia Minor is regarded as the best means of disposing of friction there, because it is believed, the Turks will be impressed by the united action of the allies. It is hoped the Greeks and Italians will withdraw lines which General Allenby will outline.

The problem of the force of occupation in the Rhineland province, arising from the withdrawal of a majority of the British and American troops, was also considered to-day. The question of principles involved has been settled and all that remains to be decided upon is the exact number of effectives and the proportion of the force of occupation to be provided by each of the allies.
